What is the difference between a single hung tubular skylight and a double hung tubular skylight? Kovera translates as 'to copy,' and that aptly describes the design of these skylights. A double hung tubular skylight features a 10mm (0.4 inch) air space between the frame and the flange. The air space limits the transmission of moisture, drips and condensation to the inside of the frame but allows the skylight to ventilate well. Double hung tubular skylights require an additional air space in the opening flange to allow the access of the venting mechanism. In the case of a single hung tubular sk 3da54e8ca3
