DENTAL EYE TROUBLE Eye problems are the most common complaints seen by a general dentist. The largest group of patients in general dentistry are seniors. They are more prone to eye problems due to changes in the eye related structures as they age. The retina especially the macula degenerates and may eventually lead to blindness. If you start to notice changes in your vision, visit your dentist and ask for an eye examination. CATARACT For the older patients, the next common complaint in general dentistry is cataracts. This is an eye problem in which the lens clouding in the eye becomes opaque and can no longer allow light to reach the retina properly. This leads to blurred vision. In most cases, cataracts can be treated successfully with lens replacement surgery. TMJ The muscles of the jaw work together to close the jaw and open the mouth. This joint is commonly referred to as the temporomandibular joint. If there are problems in the muscles of the jaw or the articular surfaces of the temporomandibular joint, this can lead to jaw problems, especially in the mouth. These can be extremely uncomfortable, especially for the older patients. In most cases, these can be successfully treated with less invasive dentistry, including cosmetic dentistry, such as dental bonding or crowns and bridges. WIGGLE FINGERS Wiggle fingers is a very common problem for patients of all ages. In most cases, this is an injury caused by a simple sprain or strain in the muscles, tendons and ligaments of the fingers. However, for patients with arthritis of the finger joints, this may be much more serious. In such cases, joint replacement surgery may be required. FINGER NECROSIS Finger scars are very common. They usually are caused by a difficult birth. In many cases, these are unsightly and can be successfully treated with cosmetic surgery. However, if some of the finger bones are fused together and cannot be separated, this can be a serious problem. In such cases, reconstructive surgery is required. TREATMENT OPTIONS If you start to notice any of the above mentioned changes in your vision or the muscles of your jaw and temporomandibular joint, let your dentist know. He/she may ask for an eye examination to evaluate your vision. Most common eye problems can be successfully treated with a “Cos

Q: Can't start Selenium server on Windows Server 2019 I've been trying to run Selenium on a Windows Server 2019 VM. I started by installing the Wix 3.11 installer on the same VM as an example of why it would work. That didn't work. Then, I downloaded the project files and started through a Visual Studio CTP experience. I got an error message. I waited a few days. Another day or two passed. It was as if I hit "Reboot" and went through a spin loop. Finally, I deleted the .vs folder and tried to start again. I got the error again: The Start-SeleniumServer cmdlet is deprecated. Parameter set to: -ServerFilePath You can still use the service.properties file to configure the server. At line:1 char:1 + Start-SeleniumServer -ServerFilePath C:\appdata\local\temp + ~~~~~ + CategoryInfo : NotSpecified: (:) [Start-SeleniumServer], RuntimeException + FullyQualifiedErrorId : Microsoft.PowerShell.Commands.StartSeleniumServerCommand I have tried re-installing to see if it made any difference. Same. I need some guidance. Is the only route to running a service like this now to uninstall and reinstall the server files? Is there something I'm missing? Where might I begin to trouble shoot? A: I have hit this issue myself, and it seems that those .vs files are corrupted when installed outside of VS. Installing anything over PowerShell still works, so for me this issue is resolved by just using PowerShell directly. That way I don't have to copy over files, and I don't have to worry about dependencies or versions that don't match. You could of course go through a PowerShell installer/uninstaller, but I hope you realize that this way of doing things works every time on every Windows machine :) Q: What are good models for probability density functions and cumulative probability functions?
