Fitness Timer helps you keep an eye on your workout sessions with the use of five exercise categories. It is essential for people who want to start exercising or, alternatively, return to fitness after a long break. Exercises can be scheduled in advance and several parameters can be set up, such as: number of repetitions, time and pace. Additionally, the application can perform a variety of workout routines, including push-ups, sit-ups, squats, crunches and abdominal exercises. You can also create and manage multiple workouts. You can add a new session by entering the name of the activity, the number of repetitions and the time, as well as the pre-workout time and the stress and relax intervals. The program comes with a sound logger, which allows you to store training sessions in a dedicated sound folder.
