After a 62-year fight, former Alaska governor Sarah Palin has joined the Republican Party, she announced Saturday. The former Alaska governor announced that she had joined the national ticket of the Republican Party, which has become the United States' biggest party in the last three presidential elections. "After careful consideration and prayerful discussion with my family, I have today officially joined the Republican Party. For me, it is a joyful day of great thanksgiving and celebration," she wrote in an announcement posted on Twitter. Palin has been a Republican governor in Alaska, a state which President Donald Trump won in 2016, and ran for vice president during his election campaign. Although she has largely kept a low profile since Trump's victory, she tweeted in support of his decision to withdraw troops from Syria on December 19, just before his Christmas holiday. In her Twitter post, Palin addressed the critics who have attacked her for not staying in the Republican Party: "The only criticism I've ever heard of is why I left the Republican Party to begin with!" she said. "I'm excited for the great things ahead in this new chapter of my life," she said. "The GOP ticket isn't anything like the bunch that I first joined in '76," she said. Earlier this week, Palin, who is a member of the Council on Foreign Relations, a think tank, posted a tweet supporting the U.S. military that was critical of Trump's decision to pull out troops in Syria. I want to filter this subgroup to show me all entries with: (a,b) (1,2) (A,B) (1,5) (A,C) The data structure is just like this: { "status": "ok", "actions": [{ "action": "a", "value": "1" }, { "action": "b", "value": "2" }, { "action": "a", "value": "1" }, { "action": "c", "value": "5" }], "__type": "action:class", "action": [{ "action": "x", "value": "1" }, { "action": "y", "value": "5" }] } I tried to create a KSQL-Query, but could not get it working. I would be glad if someone could help me out. Best Regards A: Here's an answer which works with -file. It processes each line of -file and generates the matching lines in a new file. The -file is read in from stdin: awk -F: -
