One of the more common types of absorbent pads has a core of absorbent polymer, such as polyester, superabsorber, or comminuted wood pulp, upon which is spread a continuous web of an absorbent nonwoven material. Both the absorbent polymer and the nonwoven material are hydrophilic. Often, an outer cover is placed over the absorbent pad to protect the absorbent polymer and to provide a film-like covering for the pad. The cover typically also contains hydrophilic fibers, which are water-permeable. It is desirable that the outer cover of the absorbent pad should have a pleasing appearance as well as a soft feel. It is also desirable that the outer cover of the pad should have a high tensile strength to prevent the cover from tearing when it is removed from the pad. It is also desirable that the cover be elastic to maintain its shape when it is in place on the absorbent pad.George Black (cricketer) George William Black (27 July 1884 - 19 June 1952) was a West Indian cricketer.
