I put the how-to video above, but I'm doing a tutorial video soon that explains everything. It's step-by-step, and I do it in the Twitch chat. To make this emote app, you will need: A computer. Q: PHP Exif_read_data() Fails I'm trying to get the Exif data from JPEG images using PHP's Exif_read_data() function. I've tested my code in multiple browsers as well as on different operating systems, but I'm constantly getting a fatal error message whenever I try it. My code looks like the following: "; } } else { echo "Failed to open $file"; } fclose($fl); ?> When the code is executed, the PHP error log says Fatal error: Allowed memory size of 33554432 bytes exhausted. I've tried many variations of this code, including changing the fread(), fgets() and fread() functions, as well as using different units of data, but I can't get it to work. Any ideas? Is there a memory limit on the PHP script that I need to change in order to get these types of files to work? Any help would be much appreciated. Thanks! A: Try the GD library functions instead.
