Chapter 1: Awakening with the Lost Shard ■■ A great storm has passed over the southern lands, and the distant sound of thunder echoes across the great plains. The surface of the earth trembles with the echo of the wind blowing northward. Down below, our party—a group of adventurers who were once bandits—were knocked unconscious. The guard that had been following them fled with the information that there were three people of extraordinary characteristics. The weather has suddenly taken a turn for the worse. A strong wind has begun to blow, and a mist rises from the ground. Suddenly, the sound of thunder echoes as though from the heavens. The landscape around us is bathed in red light. However, there is no sign of a town, and in the distance, the sound of the wind seems to be coming from far away. Feelings of unease arise within me. "Is this how it begins?" I ask myself. I'm not sure which direction to head in, so if you could lead me there, I will be grateful." "Sure, since you're a stranger in this region, I'll do my best to guide you. But I'm not sure which direction you should head in." The guard addresses my question. The guard looks out at the desolate, mysterious land as though one of its mysteries was suddenly revealed to him. "Hey, come on!" He exclaims, surprised. "What is it?" I ask. "This town is right over there!" The guard points directly across the horizon. "It's so pristine, so magical, I've never seen a place like this. What I don't understand is...did this town come from the legend of the Elden Ring?" "The day I first joined the job was the day I first saw this town. In the heat of the battle, I began to go crazy, but even so, I saw it in the distance. When I
